Domination of U. S. Groups

LONDON, Sept. 17. — Distinctions drawn by Bainbridge Colby, American Secretary of State, between Poland, Finland and Armenia and other sections of Russia which have declared their independence, which were made in the course of Mr. Colby's note of August 10 to the Italian Ambassador in Washington, are "impossible to understand, and probably the result of insufficient information as to the real facts of national conditions in Eastern Europe," says George Tchitcherin, Russian Bolshevik Minister of Foreign Affairs. M. Tchitcherin has addressed a note to the Italian government and to "Soviet representatives abroad," in which he answers some of the conclusions reached by Mr. Colby in discussing Russian affairs.

The Foreign Minister's communica tion was dated at Moscow, September 10, and has been published in The London Daily Herald, organ of labor.

Seeks Domination of Financiers
M. Tchitcherin says Mr. Colby considers the demand for independence of Poland, Finland and Armenia legal, saying they were annexed to Russia by force, and that their separation does not infringe upon Russia's territorial rights. He asserts the Secretary holds that other "oppressed nationalities of Czarist Russia" were not annexed by force, and that the desire for independence of the Georgian Azerbaijan. Lithuanian, Latvian, Esthonian and Ukrainian peoples, either in the form of complete independence or in federation with Russia, are illegal.

"The exceptions allowed for by Mr. Colby," says the Foreign Minister, "underline the more emphatically his adherence to the territorial indivisibility of the former Czarist empire, while at the same time his friendliness toward Russia is conditioned upon the Seeks Domination of Financiers ward Russia is conditioned upon the fact that her government shall not be a Soviet government. As a matter of fact, any other government at present is a bourgeoise or capitalist govern-ment, and, in view of the present eco-omic unification of the world, that means a governmer, connected with the interests of the world's dominating financial groups. Among these, as a result of the World War, the most powerful are the North American financial

Soviet Policy Totally Different

"Mr. Colby's friendliness toward Russia is, therefore, conditioned on the stipulation that her regime should be such a one as would enable domination of the North American financial groups in Europe. In his desire to maintain Czarist territory inviolable, he not only differs from Great Britain's policy, but is engaged in an actual struggle against it. Obviously, the group he represents realizes that other interests, namely British interests, have established themselves in new states separated from Russia, and Mr. Colby sees no other way of combating them than to abolish the independence of these states. Totally different from both is the Soviet Russian policy, which is a golicy of complete renunciation of any exploitation of another people.

"The system represented by the Soviet government, under which the working masses, having removed exploiters rom power, may determine their own fate and govern themselves, is the only existing defiance against the domination of exploiters and in-"Mr. Colby's friendliness toward

This world-wide struggle is rooted in the actual conditions existrooted in the actual conditions existing in all countries, but Mr. Colby attempts to explain it by attributing it to propaganda by Russian Soviet agents. This is not the first time that we have seen attempts on the part of American financial groups to discredit Soviet Russia by calumnies."

"Calumny against Soviet Russia," he continues, "is one of the principal means of combating the movement of working masses in every country, including America. It is the duty of Soviet Russia's representatives abroad to make categorical protests against the false accusations that the Soviet government violates its promises and concludes agreements with a view to transgressing them. The Soviet government understands the revolutionary movement of working masses in every country is their own affair and their own task. It maintains faithfully the principle that communism canont be imposed by force and that the fight of communism must be carried on by the working masses themselves in every working masses themselves in every

MOSCOW, Sept. 17 (By The Associated Press).—Russia is stronger than ever in a military gay, declares Leon Trotzky, Minister of War, in a review of the military situation and the prospects of peace, contributed to the Pravda. A new offensive by the Russians is in preparation, the War Minister insists, and he intimates that through it it is purposed to give Poland a real desire for peace, which, he says, she now lacks.

Although driven back from Warsaw,
Trotzky points out, the Soviet army independence of Lithuania has been secured, he says, while the Ukraine

the Polish occupation. The army is Poland's expressed desire for peace is insincere, the War Minister argues; as is shown by her "consistent policy of procrastination."

The latest Polish telegram to Forging Minister Tchitcherin, he notes, insists upon the representation at the Riga peace conference of the "Ukrain-lian Democratic Republic." He calls this the "Petlurean Ukraine, which is ron-existent." The Ukrainian Soviet Republic is a fact and will participate in the negotiations, he declares, but the "Petlurean Ukraine" is a Polish myth, and the effort to introduce it into the negotiations he characterizes as typical Polish tactics.

Russia, while desiring peace, designed with some reason, fears that the forthcoming plebiscite will give the rich Silesian coal fields to Germany. The districts of Allenstein and Marienwerder already have voted overwhelmingly in favor of belonging to Germany rather than to Poland.

Russia, while desiring peace, declares Trotzky, is forced to the incevitable conclusion that nothing but a severe lesson taught by the Red army will bring the Poles to reason.

The definition of the great majority rolled up by the Germans in these regions is attributed to the fact that the compulsory army service law is still effective in Poland and no one wished, by voting for annexation to Poland, to engage himself to fight in future Polish wars.

She came back, too, not on the screen, but in the lobby, where the departing crowd recognized a little gray-haired woman smiling through what seemed the identical tears which had just been dried on the black sheep's shoulders. Friends and strangers alike told the little woman, who was Mary Carr, what a wonderful picture it was.

Wonderful it was—for Broadway and the picture theaters. It retold with a thousand details of old-fashioned New England village life, the story of Will Carleton's poem, "Over the Hills to the Poorhouse." Not one detail was missing, from the children's pillow fight to mother in her lonely old age clasping her Bible to her bosom. There was a charm in the mother's smile and a skill charm in the mother's smile and a skill in her acting which was all the crowd demanded. Will Carleton's poems are gayly decorated shipping in the harbor. The Renown was escorted from Colon by the cruiser Calcutta and was joined at Bocas del Toro by the cruiser Calliope.

"The Golden Chain" Opens

At Irving Place Theater

"The Golden Chain," staged under the direction of Maurice Schwartz, was enthusiastically received last night at the Irving Place Theater. It was produced by the Irving Place Theater and is scheduled for an indefinite run. Mr. Schwartz played the leading part very capably. Bertha Gerstin was seen in the principal feminine rôle. The players are in their third season.

"These false statements have been published broadcast all over the country. They have resulted in injury to the bonds issued by the city; they have so affected the credit of the city that it is compelled to pay much higher prices for supplies and materials than it otherwise would, and in general they have so injured the financial credit of the city that the Mayor has deemed it his duty to have these suits brought so as to recover in part, at least, the damage which the city has sustained."

Will German-American Vote Be Organized For Harding?

The attempt of the German-American Citizens' League to organize German-American voters to prevent the election of Governor Cox to the Presidency is arousing lively interest in both camps. "The hyphen, that detestable phenomenon of American society, is again lifting its hydra-headed hideousness and discharging its venom," exclaims the Louisville Courier-Journal (Dem.). "There is evidence of a strong and highly organized pro-German movement in favor of the election of Senator Harding," declares the Indianapolis News (Ind.). Interpreting the resolutions passed by the German-American Citizens' League, George Sylvester Viereck, editor of The American Monthly, in the columns of his magazine, declares that "The Democratic candidate is impossible. He is the candidate of Woodrow Wilson and the League of Damnations. The Republican candidate is distinctly the lesser of two evils. His speech of acceptance is not

On the other hand, Senator Harding, in a statement which the Democratic New York Times concedes to be "proper enough so far as it goes," warns these German-American supporters that they must not think of him as favoring any class or race among our citizens. Among German-American papers that disavow a German-American vote is the St. Louis Westliche Post, which states that this paper "does not recognize any hyphen vote," and predicts that Americans of German descent will vote as any other American, "every one according to his own personal convictions as to which one of the two candidates stands higher for pure, unadulterated
